

SHOW TURNOUT MAY HIT RECORD 200,000

LAST CHANCE this year for Pumpkin Show visitors to see and hear the U. S. Army Field Band will come today and tomorrow when the world-famed musicians present their final concerts of the Golden Jubilee celebration. Very few Pumpkin Show features of the past several decades have drawn the praise and commendations accorded the band. Many sum it up this way: "You haven't been at the Pumpkin Show this year until you've attended one of the Army band concerts!" Shown above is the band's drum novelty group in action. Today's second concert is at 6 p. m. On Saturday, they'll be presented at 4 and 9:30 p. m. — all on the W. Main St. platform.

Pet Parade Has Weird Assortment

Ever-Amusing Competition Shows Plenty Of Dogs, Many Gay Styles

Pickawau on y animals were the center of attraction at yesterday's Pumpkin Show activity during a big and colorful Parade. As usual, dogs far outnumbered all other entries. Canines of every size, color and pedigree took part in the amusing competition. Moving along as if the Pumpkin Show were an every-day event, the many pets appeared well-contented with the sudden attention they were getting. Some were timid, some were playful and others were all a-jitter over the host of spectators that lined the curbs. As might be expected, many animals came dressed in sensational style for the occasion, sporting the latest Fall fashions of all types and descriptions.

PROBABLY the proudest people in Circleville during the gala parade were the young owners. Also taking part in the parade were Miss Pumpkin Show Eleanor Aldenderfer and Little Miss Pumpkin Show Melissa Willoughby, attended by their courts. Judging took place on E. Main St. following the parade. In the typical boy and his pet class, first prize went to Arnold and Allen Grabbill. Sandra Taylor won a similar prize in the typical girl and her pet class.

Second and third places in the boy and his pet class went to Dean Reichelderfer and David Winks respectively. Susan Lavack and Brenda Cook won the same honors in the girls division. Other winners were as follows: Novel Display (Boys and Girls) 1st—Ricky Pontious; 2nd—David and Theresa Troutman; 3rd—Bruce Diltz.

Unusual Pets or Freak 1st—Bruce Brown; 2nd—Phillip Stevens; 3rd—Jessica Pearl. Greatest Number of Pets 1st—Carl Zehner; 2nd—Joseph List; 3rd—Phillip List. Best Decorated Boys Bike 1st—Jeff Lutz; 2nd—Thomas Brown; 3rd—Danny Crabtree. Best Decorated Girls' Bike 1st—Judy Wharton; 2nd—Ruth Hoy; 3rd—Leola Harmon. Truant Boy, 15, Killed By Police

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 15-year-old boy, sought as a truant from the Mt. Alverno School for Boys, was shot to death Thursday night by police officers who said the boy attacked them with a crowbar. The six-foot tall, 200-pound youth was identified as Peter White. Patrolmen Charles Hensley and Virgil Backscheider said the youth started swinging a crowbar at Hensley when the officer pursued him to the third floor of a tenement where the boys parents, Mr. and Mrs. John White, live. The boy drove Hensley back downstairs and then started swinging at Backscheider. Both officers then opened fire.

Lawbreaking Legal Out In California

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Breaking the law can be done legally in Santa Ana—for a fee. To clear streets of automobiles at night for city street sweepers, Santa Ana made it illegal to park on the street overnight. But for citizens who really have to park there, the ordinance provides that the law can be broken by anyone who pays $4 monthly.

GOP 'Despises' New Ideas, Adlai Claims

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson said here today that Republicans "seem to despise new ideas." He said that when they come face to face with one, "they twist and distort it until public understanding or discussion becomes almost impossible. "This isn't accident," Stevenson declared. "It is the deliberate design of a political leadership which doesn't want voters to think, which knows its own bankruptcy of new plans for a new America."

Stray Sauce From The Pumpkin

"Quick!" shouted the Circleville housewife to her husband from her seat by the telephone, "company's coming to stay the rest of the Pumpkin Show! You clean up that kitchen in a hurry and I'll take the rest of the house!" Later, with the company on hand, comfortable, and entranced by the husband's tales of the annual show, the housewife began to worry about the dirty dishes that had suddenly disappeared in the kitchen. They weren't in the cupboard, in the oven or under the sink. And no wonder she couldn't find them. Hubby had dumped them in buckets and put them out in the garage!

If you want to see that little boy's eyes light up brighter than anything else in the show, take him to see the U. S. Navy exhibit in front of the courthouse. Chief Carl Whitaker has arranged a number of scale models of Navy planes and ships, with a special place of honor for a true-to-scale model of "the county's own" attack transport, the USS Pickaway. It should be a must, not only for the youngsters, but for everybody else interested in any phase of Navy life—and for that great legion of oldsters who drool over the scale models just for kicks.

"Dear Show Officials: It's no wonder one of those parade bombs hurt Mr. Colville. When one went off the other day my husband, drinking coffee, sprayed my mother across the table and blew the rest out his nose! Sincerely, Nervous."

Curbstone plotting near the info booth: "Aunt Amy's coming tonight and the house is an awful mess. We figure on running her around the show so much she'll get so tired she won't even be able to see the house."

If any band can play Sousa's "Thunderer" better than the Circleville High School marching band, we haven't heard it. Hitting once more at President Eisenhower's "last word" on the bomb issue, the Democratic vice presidential candidate said Eisenhower cannot be permitted to snuff out discussion of "the nightmare of a nuclear weapons race" between this nation and Russia.

In unusually strong words prepared for a Democratic luncheon rally here not far from the birthplace of the A-bomb, Kefauver made it clear the Democrats intend to keep on pressing for an international H-bomb curb. The tall Tennesseean, on a coast to coast stumping tour, accused Republicans of giving a "political twist" to the proposal of Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic standard bearer, for a moratorium on "unlimited and uncontrolled testing of super bombs."

He said that in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration it was "Martin, Barton and Fish (Republican congressmen) who turned their backs on international cooperation."

"And now, in the days of Adlai Stevenson, it is Eisenhower, Dewey, Dulles and Nixon who would refuse us the right to take a constructive step in halting the world's rush toward death. No matter what age they live in, Republicans never seem to change."

Navy Polar Plane Crash Kills 3 Gls

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Navy plane carrying advance units of this year's South Polar expedition crashed on the antarctic ice shelf Thursday, killing three men and injuring five others. The Navy here said six other planes landed safely after the 2,250-mile flight from New Zealand to McMurdo Sound. All were carrying advance units of a scientific expedition to the antarctic area for work in connection with the International Geophysical Year, in which many nations are sharing their scientific discoveries.

You Too Can Make Some Pickled Pigs

ATASCADERO, Calif. (AP)—Did you know that water and barley and pigs produce pickled pigs? Neither did Jim Bentley, an Atascadero farmer, who thinks a lot of his three pigs. He gave them a special treat of barley soaked in water. Later he tried to herd them into their pen and found they couldn't move; just stared at him stupidly. So Bentley rushed to the telephone and called a veterinarian. "Humph," said the vet after a quick look. "They're not sick, just drunk."

Dayton Sisters Win Barbershop Quartet Event

Greenfield Juniors Second, Clarksburg Girls Take Third

Four sisters from Dayton were declared the winning group last night in one of the new top contests of the Golden Jubilee Pumpkin Show — "barbershop quartet" singing. Four quartets competed in the event, especially selected to help carry out the anniversary theme of "oldtimer" community interests. The Ernst Sisters of Dayton, Charlotte, Wilma, Adelyn and Emelyn, took the $40 first prize after singing several numbers in lilting harmony.

Since two quartets failed to appear, prizes were awarded to all four competing groups. In second place were the Greenfield Juniors, boys from Greenfield High School who appeared in gray pants, black-and-white striped shirts, winged collars and sailor-straw hats. They sprinkled their songs with whistling and also added a few dance steps.

Sandra Kelley accompanied the Greenfield quartet on the piano. The Clarksburg Teenettes, under the direction of Mrs. Mary S. McGhee, finished third. The girls, all juniors at Clarksburg High School, wore dresses patterned in the style of the Roaring 20's, cut short and trimmed with fringes worthy of the "flapper" age. Fourth prize went to the Starr Brothers.

Dentist Sues To Recover Buried Hoard

COLUMBUS (AP)—Dr. Harley E. Stone, a Columbus dentist, has filed suit in common pleas court to recover $95,510 in cash and government bonds which he said he buried in his sister's back yard here.

He filed the suit against his brother-in-law, Earl J. Woods, and the dentist's action says Woods removed a glass jar containing the money from the yard last June 22 after the dentist was ordered to leave the Woods' home. Stone said the jar contained $41,510 in cash, including $1,000 and $500 bills, and $54,000 in U. S. government bonds payable to him or his two children.

The suit said Dr. Stone lived at the Woods' home with his sister and her family for four years "prior to June 21, 1956." He said his sister, Mrs. Fanny Stone Woods, died last March. It further says that Woods "caused" the money-filled jar to be removed from its hiding place and delivered the contents to himself as administrator of the estate of Stone's sister. Woods is the only heir to his wife's estate.

Stone said he buried the money and bonds for safe-keeping "with the knowledge, consent and assistance of Earl Woods."

Hartman Tells Why Board Had To Ask School Levy

Additional 2.3 Operating Tax Going On Ballot; Revaluation Revenue Will Not Solve Problems

Circleville City Schools Superintendent George Hartman explained today why the city school board felt it had "no choice" in its decision to ask for an additional operating levy on the November ballot.

Intention to place the additional 2.3 mill levy before the voters was first disclosed by Hartman on September 18. In his latest statement, he tells why the school system will not receive enough new revenue through property revaluation to make the added tax unnecessary.

He also gives more data in support of the claim that Circleville's school system is operating with expenditures far below the state average. Even with the new proposed levy, he said, the Circleville operating levy would still be 2.7 below the average computed for the state.

Hartman's statement follows:

"THE CITY Board of Education feels it has no choice but to offer a four mill operating levy at the regular election on Tuesday, November 6. The ballot will read one and seven tenths renewal and two and three tenths additional.

"Several people have asked if the real estate revaluation will bring to the schools the needed revenue to balance the budget. To be real truthful with you, we do not know how much the revaluation will help the schools. We face a deficit of $60,000 between January 1, 1957, and January 1, 1958. "Two and three tenths mills will not produce enough to cover the deficit. It would take an extra mill more than we are asking on the present tax duplicate to produce $60,000.

"The county auditor says they will add the new properties to the tax duplicate now and not the increase on old properties at this time. With a tax duplicate of approximately $21,000,000 for the January 1, 1957, to January 1, 1958, tax period, we are estimating that 2.3 mills will yield approximately $48,300.

"The auditor gave us an unofficial estimate of a tax duplicate of $21,000,000. That would be after the new property revaluation has been added. The increase over this year's duplicate would be approximately $500,000.

"You can see that we will need all revenue produced by revaluation and then will be unable to balance the operating budget. We are going to try to save the difference by cutting purchases of supplies and by holding down maintenance costs.

"WE would like to point out that Circleville does not have an extravagant school program. We are operating at $11.50 per one thousand dollars of real estate valuation while the average for the state of Ohio this year is $16.58. When the new levy is approved our operating levy will be 13.80 mills or two and seven tenths below the state average.

"Most of our budget goes for salaries. The employee payroll for September, 1956 was $35,000. Multiply $35,000 times twelve and you have an annual payroll of $420,000. Next year it will be higher because we are sure to have a pupil growth producing a need of at least three more teachers on the payroll.

"A cut-back to an eight month term or a cut in teachers' salaries is not the answer to the problem. It is very difficult to hold and fill the teaching staff now at our present salary schedule, which is based on the same minimums as required by law.

"We lost a high school teacher this year to Wyandott, Mich., where he will teach dramatics (Continued on Page Two)

Blaze Found Near Telephone Firm's Trucks

Fire Chief Talmer Wise and a representative from the State Fire Marshal's Office today were investigating a blaze discovered on the outside of a garage just north of Watt St. Six Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company trucks were parked in the garage.

Chief Wise said investigation revealed that the fire was set deliberately. The trucks and the inside of the garage were not damaged.

The blaze was discovered at 4:15 a. m. today by city policeman Don Adams. He was making a routine check in the Eastend of the city.

Local firemen, summoned immediately, extinguished the fire before it could cause much damage. The telephone company trucks inside the garage was not touched by the flames.

WISE SAID damage to the outside of the building amounted to about $50. The blaze was centered around the vehicle entrance doors. The building, located on Watt St. near Hargus Creek, is owned by Dewey Speakman.

Illinois Chief Denies Link To Hodge Scandal

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton, appearing before a U. S. Senate committee, has denied "any implication" that onetime Auditor Orville E. Hodge was spirited off to prison to keep other names out of the $1½ million state check-cashing scandal.

Stratton, a Republican seeking reelection, testified before the Democrat-controlled Senate Banking and Currency Committee Thursday at his own request. The hearings, which have lasted two weeks, were scheduled to end today with questioning of State Treasurer Warren Wright and Charles J. Fleck, Cook County public administrator.

During nearly 3½ hours of testimony, Stratton said he was powerless, under the state constitution, to interfere with other elected officials. He testified that once the embezzlements were known, he took "firm, effective" action in getting rid of Hodge.

The committee, headed by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.), has been probing the banking aspects of the Hodge swindle with the aim of improving federal banking laws. Hodge, a Republican, is in prison for admittedly embezzling from the state treasury through a bogus check-cashing scheme.

Stratton said he "never dreamed" Hodge was a "common thief," and he added, "nothing I could have done would have prevented Orville Hodge from becoming a thief."

Ohio Soil Bank Total: $706,914

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reports it has made payments totaling $706,914 through Oct. 12 to Ohio farmers under the new soil bank plan.

The department also reported that through Oct. 12 Ohio's winter wheat growers have signed agreements to retire land from production in 1957 which would entitle them to $5,316,237 in soil bank payments.

Nixon Talks At Al Smith Memorial

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Vice President Nixon continued talking today on his view that Adlai Stevenson "just isn't in the same league" as President Eisenhower when it comes to leadership in international or domestic affairs.

In New York Thursday night Nixon took time out from the campaign trail to make the avowedly non-political main address at the annual Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner. Smith, former New York governor, was the 1928 Democratic nominee.

Nixon predicted the United States will come through the present crisis over racial desegregation in public schools as, he said, it has surmounted in the past such things as the Ku Klux Klan and the antiforeign Know Nothing movement.

"Most of us here will live to see the day when American boys and girls shall sit side by side at any school, public or private—with no regard paid to the color of their skin," Nixon said.

Nixon said the United States will work first to remove from the world the fear of war and the burden of armament, then seek by exchange of persons and other means to convince Communist governments that "even on their materialist assumptions, they must restore full freedom if their society is to work."

GOP 'Truth Squad' Refutes Stevenson

CLEVELAND (AP)—Adlai Stevenson has "given the false impression that the Republicans are the party of wealth," four GOP congressmen, calling themselves a "truth squad," said today.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska said "It was Franklin Delano Roosevelt who had eight millionaires in his cabinet. Truman had five or six. Eisenhower has five, and they all earned their money, instead of inheriting it."

Sen. Frederick G. Payne of Maine declared "The Democratic nominee has charged the administration has no sympathy for or interest in small business. But in 1955 there were only 10,969 failures of small business, which is lower than the 13,612 yearly average since 1900."

Weather Man's Good News Is Basis For Hope

Concerts, Contests, Parades On Slate For Great Finale

Moving past its half-way mark with an attendance margin of several thousand over the same point last year, the 1956 Golden Jubilee Pumpkin Show appeared today to have another good chance of reaching and passing a record 200,000 turnout.

Attendance for this year's opening day was unofficially figured at 50,000 "and maybe a little bit better". Yesterday's attendance was estimated at 55,000.

New, long-range weather forecasts, predicting that temperatures would average about 10 degrees above normal through the remainder of the week, spurred hopes that the big anniversary celebration will be able to claim a total 200,000 crowd or better.

"A little warmer" was the weather man's promise for Saturday, bringing with it a closing night finale that, in itself, may set new records in Pumpkin Show excitement.

MEANWHILE, thousands continued to stream into the downtown area each day to watch and listen to the U. S. Army Field Band and other top attractions. The Baby Parade, always a top-rank feature, was held this afternoon.

This evening's program will be topped by the Industrial and Merchants Parade. Also included in the entertainment tonight will be two more of the show's new contests to crown the "Miss Old Days" with the rocking and rolling modern times.

Contests in "Charleston" and "jitterbug" dancing were scheduled for 9 and 9:30 p. m. Program Director James P. Shea urged all interested contestants to get in touch with him before that time. Late entries will be able to contact Shea through the information booth.

Late this afternoon, 22 educators from nearly a dozen foreign lands are expected to arrive in Circleville for the remainder of the celebration. The teachers, who are visiting the United States to study all phases of American life, will be the guests of local families during their stay in and around the city.

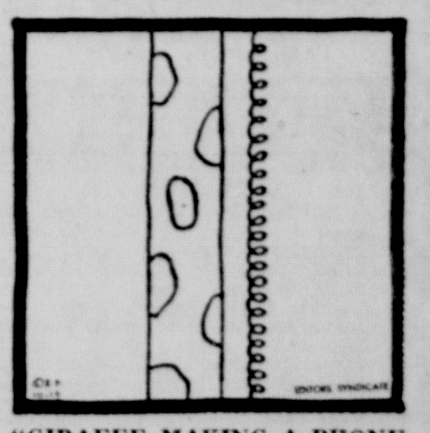

Baton twirling eliminations will lead off the Saturday program at 1:30 p. m. Finals in this event, however, will not be held until evening.

Tomorrow's first concert by the Army Band is slated for 4 p. m. The Grand Champion Pumpkin Pie Baker will be named Saturday evening at 9 p. m., one hour after the start of the glittering Winners Parade.

DROODLES

The Giraffe in this Doodle is making a call to his agent in Hollywood to find out why he hasn't been working in any jungle pictures. The last good job he had was in Trader Horn and since then he's only done a few travelogues and a couple of stampeeos in the Tarzan series. Unfortunately, I think his acting career is finished because today the public wants to see pretty girls like Debbie Reynolds and Zsa Zsa Gabor. What he should do is let his lower lip protrude like Charles Boyer's and wear a wavy wig with sideburns so he can become the leading man type. Then he'd be a sensation. Especially in the necking scene.

World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson have had time enough—with the election only 18 days away—to show what they think the campaign issues are.

Eisenhower has concentrated on domestic affairs, not the foreign field, although he devoted all of his Sept. 19 opening speech to foreign problems.

Stevenson has divided himself more evenly between affairs at home and abroad. Yet, judging from the way he picks up an issue, drops it, and comes back to it, he looks like a man having trouble deciding what to play up most.

With one exception Eisenhower has brought the word "peace" into every speech he has made as a reminder that the Korean War, which he inherited, has ended and that country has peace.

He also sometimes mentions Korea directly and most of the time, in one way or another, combines "peace" with "prosperity and progress."

In short, he is saying: "Folks, everything is going well. Everything is under control. Things will get better too. Since you never had it so good, why rock the boat?"

Stevenson's central theme is just the opposite: "Things are not as good as the Republicans make them appear. All kinds of things need doing, but the Republicans won't do them. They're not interested in everybody, only rich people."

But if you just listened to them say what they thought the issues were you might think they were a couple of confused candidates rummaging in a bagful of ideas, looking for something to say.

Although peace is his central theme, Eisenhower has said: "There is one thing that is not an issue in this campaign: the longing of all Americans for peace, prosperity and progress."

Another time he said he thinks the real issue is: "How do we manage America's internal affairs?" At another time he said: "What then is the real issue? It is this: What principles... policies and programs can best help our people..."

Stevenson, when talking of issues, has said the vice presidency is one of the "most basic" issues. Another time he said he considers the "question of war and peace... the overriding issue in any presidential campaign." Still another time he said "peace is not an issue in this election, but how best to deter aggression."

He said, "The central issue in this campaign may well be which party means what it says." And he said: "So far as the Democratic party is concerned this is the major issue... We are dedicated to our vision of the new America."

And he said "whether America wants to stay on dead center" is a central issue.

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In 1932 I was secretly married to a wonderful boy. We wanted to keep it secret for certain reasons. Less than three months later he was killed in Korea.

Our families had known that we were engaged, but none knew that we were married—except the couple who attended us. They were related to Bob, I'll call him.

Now Bob's mother is very ill and has little time left; and this couple feels that I should tell her before she passes on. What do you think I should do?

I am in my middle twenties and have never remarried, but if I should, I realize this would have to be told.

H. Y.
DEAR H. Y.: If it is true that the mother doesn't know, and has never suspected, that Bob was married before he died, she probably has felt a special closeness (or claim) to him, on the assumption that he died single.

Thus there's a question of whether you'd be inflicting a wound of sorts, instead of affording eleventh hour consolation, if you were to identify yourself as his widow, now.

It seems to be instinctive in human nature that a mother (even the best of them), involuntarily regards a son's wife as a rival in the field of affections—at least in her spontaneous unconscious first emotional reaction to his choice of a life partner.

If your hope is to ease her going, by sharing with her a sense of mutuality, in remembering Bob well, in that case I feel you should consult her doctor, and be guided by his confidential opinion, as to whether such candor would be a tonic, or a shock, to her at this time.

M. H.
DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a friend who is going through a severe mental depression. She has received psychiatric help at a nearby hospital, and after two weeks of intensive physical and mental examinations, was told that she alone can pull herself out of this depression.

I recall reading of a similar case in your column; and you mentioned a certain book that outlines a specialist's theories of self-help, for persons in that condition. For the benefit of my friend, and possibly others in your audience, will you state again the title and author of the book?

P. V.
DEAR P. V.: Probably you refer to the late Dr. Abraham A. Low's book: "Mental Health Through Will Training." It is printed by the Christopher Publishing House, Boston, Mass.

Dr. Low was founder and medical director of a pioneering system of self-help in psychotherapy, known as "Recovery, Inc." For information on its program, write to Recovery, Inc., 116 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago 3.

In the Sept. 15, 1956 issue of America (a scholarly periodical) you will find a favorable article about "Recovery, Inc." — which it calls "the poor man's psychiatry."

M. H.
Mary Hawthorth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Businessmen Believe Better Times Ahead

Wide Sampling Shows Next Few Weeks To Be Good For Economy

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Better times ahead are predicted today by a wide sampling of business leaders.

They aren't talking in general terms about long-term possibilities for the economy as a whole but about what they expect in the next few weeks or months for their own companies or industries. The sampling included the fields of steel, chemicals, textiles, home building, appliances, TV, movie theaters, women's wear and distilling.

Auto makers, too, are out today with glowing predictions of better days ahead for them. But this is usual with them at the start of a new model year.

Steel executives are among the leading optimists. Latest to join the chorus is Joel Hunter, president of Crucible Steel, who expects the current quarter to be one of his company's best. This should offset a strike slowed third quarter and bring sales for the year to a record high.

The chemical industry will continue its spectacular growth, Dr. Charles Allen Thomas, president of Monsanto Chemical predicts. And he sees a new era of technological advance just ahead: cheap conversion of water into fresh, harnessing of energy from the sun, cheaper building materials, cost cuts in making chemicals.

Home appliance sales still can rise 20 per cent to top five billion dollars this year, in the view of Judson S. Sayre, president of Norge Division of Borg-Warner. The trick: Use better selling methods.

TV set sales in the final three months of this year can top those in the same period of 1955, Dr. W. R. G. Baker, vice president of General Electric believes. By 1960 annual sales should reach 10 million sets. The outlook for industrial and educational television particularly bright. His boss, GE president Ralph J. Cordiner, includes the whole electronic industry as one of those going to continue to boom.

After 121 Years, Paper Quits GOP

TOLEDO (AP)—The Toledo Blade today has come out for Adlai E. Stevenson for President, the first time in its 121 years of publication that it has backed a democrat.

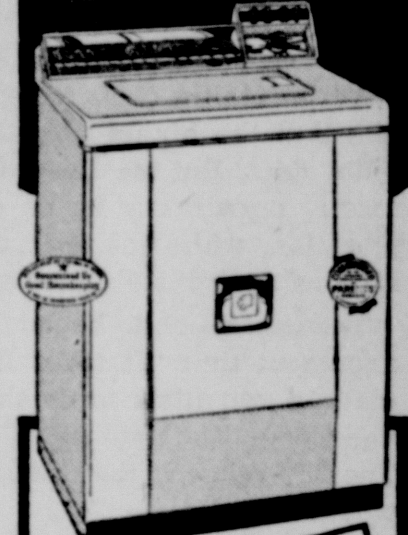

In setting forth its reasons for not backing Eisenhower for a second term, the Blade conceded that the former five-star general has given the nation honest, efficient government and has not tried to turn the clock backwards.

"But, on the other hand, it (the Eisenhower administration) has not tackled the nation's problems with vision and vigor during the past four years," the Blade said.

FOR WIDER HORIZONS
SOME POINTED criticism of modern educational methods has come from the dean of American inventors, Charles F. Kettering. Speaking at a meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Kettering blasted the trend toward specialization in the public school system. In his words, "If a kid has any originality, we knock it out of him. We want him to read only one page of the encyclopedia, when he should read the entire book."

Kettering, who invented the automobile self-starter and the electric drive for cash registers and developed and improved the two cycle diesel engine, refers to himself as a "screw driver and pliers guy." He is a man of the inquisitive age, when man was not content to follow one pursuit but sought knowledge on all facets of life.

Students of this inclination, to be sure, never attain the proficiency in any one subject that the highly specialized scholar of today does. But the diversified fields of the former open many fertile avenues of exploration, while the specialist places limitations upon his abilities and ambitions.

There is much to be said for Kettering's argument that "It takes five highly specialized scientists to do the job now that one low grade fellow could do 20 years ago. The difference is that the low grade fellow would try anything."

Kettering is not opposed to education, as attested to by his own college diploma, which he reputedly threw away to remind himself that his education was not over, but he definitely is convinced that a broadening of interests, rather than a narrowing, is needed for this nation to hold its lead in the inventive world. In short, he believes the United States is still capable of producing great inventors, if young fellows can be caught before they get too much formal education.

SARNOFF'S VISION

IT IS TOUCH and go whether those now on the upper fringes of middle age will see it, but they have an incentive to stick around until 1976 for confirmation of David Sarnoff's concept of living conditions 20 years hence.

Sarnoff is chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America.

In two more decades, thinks Sarnoff, Americans will be riding in 5,000 miles per hour rocket planes, operating all the gadgets in their homes with push buttons and enjoying controlled weather. Nuclear energy will be plentiful and economical. The sun's energy will be harnessed for common use. People will see each other as they talk over the telephone.

Guided missiles will transport mail and freight. Automation will increase production and decrease costs. Chemical and biological discoveries will vastly expand food resources. Preventive medicine and public health will further extend the life span. And there will be a whole flock of startling new gadgets.

This suggests that, much as science has given mankind, the world "hasn't seen anything yet." But if one could make a personal choice, he'd be willing to slough off all the rest and take controlled weather alone. At times there might be popular conflict over the type of meteorology wanted. But such differences could be resolved.

Even Grass Roots Yawning

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—In 1952, the ordinary voter didn't hesitate to break up a beautiful lifelong friendship over a difference in political opinion.
He was that steamed up.
But do you know of anybody who has broken any lifelong friendship as a result of the 1956 campaign? I don't.
In less than three weeks from now the nation picks its next President. But the general public seems hardly more stirred by this fact than by the news that there are only 50-odd shopping days left before Christmas.
What has happened?
In previous presidential election years politics have always ranked as America's top participant sport, a participant sport being one in which you take part yourself—such as playing gin rummy or making love.
The great spectator sports,

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

The population of the world is increasing by leaps and bounds despite wars, famines, droughts, epidemics and the insane politics of so-called statesmen. Apparently the moon is bright and boys meet girls despite the misfortunes of our times.

Japan, which is only 20 percent arable, has announced that it now has a population of more than 90,000,000 and has reached a density of 243 persons per square kilometer, which is the third densest in all this world. This constantly increasing population in a land which is short of foodstuffs and raw materials raises a serious political problem for Asia and for the world.

In the 1920's, when Japan's population was in the 60,000,000's, the hope of the Japanese was that they could either expand on to the mainland of Asia, preferably in Manchuria, or settle in what then were called the South Sea Islands. It was principally the United States that kept Japan from conquering China only to open the way for Soviet Russia to take every part of Asia that Japan coveted.

In her effort to solve this population problem and to find reader access to food and raw materials, Japan, by 1931, became involved in a series of wars with China and expansionist efforts in Asia which ended in disastrous defeat and the reduction of Japan from the primary nation of Asia to an unfortunate ward of General Douglas MacArthur and now is uncertain as to the course to follow.

Nevertheless, the population of Japan increases and the Japanese have no place to go. It is now assumed that by 1970, the Japanese population will reach 100,000,000. Realistically, Japan is committing suicide by having a population beyond its capacity to feed them or to produce raw materials for her industries. If Japan cannot export manufactured goods, Japan cannot import foodstuffs. If Japan has inadequate food supplies, there will be food riots and possibly a revolution.

Other countries have faced this problem. Italy has, in recent years, been able to export population to the United States, the Argentine, North Africa and Southern France, as Germany did in the earlier years of the 19th century to the United States. The Japanese have encountered resistance in the United States and in most Latin American countries on racial grounds.

Such resistance produced the California Land Laws and the incarceration of American-born citizens of Japanese descent in concentration camps during World War II—as disgraceful an act as this country has ever been guilty of. There is no indication that racial resistance has lessened in recent years sufficiently to make large scale emigration possible.

The real danger in this situation is that the Japanese will be forced by historic and geographical logic to join the Soviet bloc of Asiatic countries. In this way, Korea, Manchuria and Mongolia will again be opened to the Japanese who will not only have easy access to foodstuffs and raw materials, but also to under-populated areas to which to send their surplus people as well as their manufactured goods. Manchuria produces wheat and soy beans which the Japanese require.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING
by KELLEY ROOS

From the Dodd, Mead & Co. novel. Copyright © 1949 by William and Audrey Kelley Roos. © 1956 by Kelley Roos. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS
Connie Barton's husband of almost five years has made her suspicious lately by his Wednesday night absences; his alibi for going out these evenings have worn thin. So Connie concludes Steve must be having blonde trouble. She resolves to fight fire with fire. She has her jet hair dyed the blondest blonde and seeks to allure him into staying home. But Steve laughs at her new hair-do and goes out again. Furious, Connie follows him to an office building where she spies him in a private room dancing with a beautiful blonde. Connie realizes he has been taking dancing lessons—a pleasant surprise for her. She keeps an eye on the door, and after Steve leaves Connie enters the room unnoticed to have an encounter with a beautiful blonde teacher. Waltz music is still playing—and the teacher is sprawled on the floor—shot dead in her hand is a paper silhouette of herself with a needle through it. Connie looks for another door that the murderer could have used, but there is none.

CHAPTER 4
THEN I was standing in the still crowded reception room, grasping at the edge of the desk for support. The waltzing music was still ringing in my ears, the dead girl's eyes still staring into mine. Beneath me the big desk seemed to roll, the telephones, the stacks of papers, the open register.

It was seeing the name in black and white that snapped me out of it. The letters swam, then straightened themselves. Stephen Barton, they said, 7:00—8:00. Anita Farrell, Studio K. It was there in front of me, on the records... the name of Anita Farrell's last pupil, the name of Anita Farrell's murderer.

I glanced around. No one was paying me any attention. I reached for the book. My fingers still clutched the cardboard silhouette that I had taken from the teacher's hand. I tucked it between two pages and closed the book. I slipped it under my coat and folded my arms across it. I moved away from the desk and, being unobtrusive, got into an elevator that was headed down.

It was nearly eight-thirty when I reached home. The apartment was empty, but Steve had been there. He had changed into an old pair of more comfortable shoes and gone out again, possibly to look for me. I slid the register under a seat cushion in the living room and started out to look for him. He wasn't, or hadn't been, at any of the places where we ate and drank.

At nine-thirty I phoned home. There was no answer. By ten-thirty I had been in every bar and restaurant in our neighborhood at least once. I had phoned all of Steve's better friends; I had done everything I could think of to find him. At ten I saw the headline on the papers.

It was bound to happen sooner or later. Jimmy Durante met a girl whose nose was even bigger than his. "It's meant a fortune to me," said Jimmy, "but I imagine it's a cause of some embarrassment to you. Why don't you get it fixed?"
The girl waited. "You don't understand, Mr. Durante. I've already had it fixed."

Lighter Touch Guards Against "Close Shave"

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
HAVE any of you men ever been the victim of a close shave? Chances are you have if you've developed small pimples on the shaving area of your face. Those of you with curly hair or facial hair which has a tendency to grow at sharp angles are especially susceptible.

Facial Hair
This condition, in which the pimples contain facial hair, probably is caused by attempting to shave too closely and shaving against the grain.
When you stretch the skin to get a good close shave, you cause the hair to protrude farther above the surface of the skin than it normally would. The razor snips the hair off and the remaining stub settles beneath the skin surface.

Many times these closely cropped hairs grow out through the natural hair follicles.
Skin Tube
However, it is always possible that the hairs will penetrate the wall of the skin tube instead of following their natural course. As they grow, they force their way directly through the skin.
Now, no matter how clean you keep your face, germs are present on the skin at all times. These germs, coming in contact with the broken skin, are apt to produce infection. And there you have your pimples.

Electric Shaver
Switching to an electric shaver probably won't solve the problem. Heavy pressure by the head of an electric razor is just as apt to extend a hair above the skin surface beyond its normal length.
Light pressure when shaving with the grain also is advisable to prevent such conditions and to help clear them up once they do occur.
So just remember: If shaving causes pimples to form on your face, use the once-over-lightly technique.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
B. A. G.: What is the cause of colic in infants?
Answer: Colic may be caused by exposure to cold air or eating cold food. If a child is sensitive to certain foods, he may also have colic.
Some children swallow an excessive amount of air, or are given excessive amounts of starch. Any of these things may also cause colic.

The highlight of the October meeting of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was the guest speaker, Mrs. Clark Will, when the chapter met in the home of the Regent, Miss Marie Hamilton, with 45 members and one guest in attendance.

Followed by a welcome from Miss Hamilton, the meeting was opened in ritualistic form by the Regent, assisted by the chaplain, Mrs. Christian Schwarz. This was followed by the pledge of allegiance and the National anthem, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Peters.

Miss Hamilton quoted excerpts from the President General's message, Mrs. Frederick A. Groves, which appeared in the DAR magazine, and the address which she delivered in seven states, from the Press Digest. Mrs. Groves visited these seven states this year.

Mrs. Ira Stump, National Defense chairman, gave a five minute report on the narcotic situation.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were given. Miss Betty McCoy, acting chairman for the American Indians, reported that a box of clothing valued at $50 had been sent to the two girls adopted by the chapter.

Several members who were on the historical tour gave reports. This tour included Fort Ancient and the group's Ohio Shrine, Waldschmidt House.

The Board recommended that a tour be made to the historical spot Adena, and the historical museum, Chillicothe, in the near future.

The Regent, Miss Hamilton, asked members to display their flag on Armistice Day, November 11. The chapter voted unanimously to extend an invitation to Carolyn Camp (Mrs. Earl) Kibler to become a member of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, DAR.

Letters of thanks from the S. Court St. and the Franklin and Mount St. school teachers and pupils for the flags, pledge of allegiance cards and the small statue of Uncle Sam, which were presented to these schools by the Regent, Miss Hamilton, were read by the secretary, Mrs. Forest Croman.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Clark Will, the guest speaker. Her topic was, "America, First Person."

In starting her talk, Mrs. Will said, "As the United States of America, I am only 180 years old, but I have been here in nearly my present form for millions of years. I cover approximately three million square miles and my people number somewhere around 168 million. Yes, everything about me is big—my mountains, plains, rivers, towns, churches, schools, colleges and factories.

HEAR, O ISRAEL

MOSES WARNS HIS PEOPLE TO BE TRUE TO THEIR GOD AND OBEY HIS LAWS

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
LAST WEEK'S LESSON was on the Ten Commandments, which gave the Jewish people the laws of moral living, which today are equally important for us all to observe, no matter to what faith we belong. Today's lesson takes us to the Plains of Moab, where, after their triumphant crossing of the Red sea, by God's "mighty hand," Moses instructs his people in keeping of these laws.

"Hear, therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promised thee in the land that floweth with milk and honey."

"Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

These words should be in their hearts always, Moses admonishes. They were commanded to commandments of the Lord your God, and His testimonies, and His statutes, which He hath commanded thee.

"And thou shalt do right and good in the sight of the Lord: that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which the Lord swore unto thy fathers."

If they obeyed the Lord the Hebrews were promised long life, prosperity and power in this land to which they were drawing near.

When the son of the family asks his father, "What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord our God hath commanded you?" then the father should tell the son of their cruel bondage in Egypt, and the way in which the Lord teach them diligently to their children; they should talk of them in their homes, and while they walked, when they laid down to rest, and when they rose next morning.

MEMORY VERSE

"And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart, and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children."—Deuteronomy 6: 6-7a.

The home, we will all agree, is the place where the law of the Lord and His statutes are best taught, and the example is set. The home is where we all spend the greater part of our daily lives. A home where there is harmony, love, understanding and obedience to the moral and spiritual laws, will have a tremendous influence on the whole family and later shape their pattern of life.

When the Hebrews grew prosperous in the land promised them, Moses warned them not to forget the Lord, their God, and not to bow down to worship man-made idols. This form of worship seems to have been a constant temptation to the ancient Hebrew people.

"Ye shall diligently keep the

"showed signs and wonders, great and sore, upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his household, before our eyes."

"And He brought us out from thence, that He might bring us in, to give us the land which He swore unto our fathers."

Ingratitude is one of the meanest of faults. After all Jehovah did for the Hebrew people, one would suppose they would always be so full of gratitude toward Him that never would they forget Him and allow themselves to worship other than He.

Even in our world in which we read of the atom bomb, wars or possible wars, crime, etc., the sun continues to rise and set in glory, the stars shine, the flowers bloom, trees and vines bear fruit and gardens produce foods for our tables. We (most of us) have relatives and friends who love us—not all, alas!—and so many blessings that surely we should thank God for them and strive diligently to obey His laws.

Banking Costs For Farm Deal Labeled Huge

JOPLIN, Mo., (P) — Sen. Estes Kefauver said that "the Eisenhower price support plan for big banking interests" costs the government more in one year than farm price supports cost in 20 years of Democratic administration.

Criss-crossing drought plagued western Missouri and Kansas in a bid for the farm vote, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate whacked away at Eisenhower administration farm policies.

He declared: "As soon as President Eisenhower got into office, he started to force farm prices down and to push interest payments up."

"The result of the price support plan for the big banking interests is that we taxpayers have to pay much higher interest charges on the federal debt."

"The cost of interest to the federal government has increased to $1.2 billion a year more than it was in 1932."

"The added cost of interest amounts to more, every year, than farm price supports cost in all 20 years under Democratic administrations."

In a Springfield talk, Kefauver stressed peace and pleaded for an international agreement to halt hydrogen bomb testing as proposed by his running mate Adlai Stevenson. He was accorded a roaring reception by an audience filling all 4,000 seats in the Shrine Auditorium. It was one of the most impressive demonstrations thus far given Kefauver.

FFA Honors Ohioan With High Degree

COLUMBUS, (P) — Ralph Ring of Wooster received an honorary American farmer degree Thursday at the national convention of the Future Farmers of America, in Kansas City.

Ring's son, Dale, also of Wooster, received the degree last year. Ohio chapters which received gold emblem awards at the convention were Jeromesville, Loudonville and Scioto Valley at Ostrander.

Ohio's delegates to the convention are John Poppe, state president of the FFA from New Bremen, and Larry Earhart, past president from West Milton.

Mother Decides To Send Child To School After All

CALIFORNIA, Mo., (P) — After thinking it over in jail, Mrs. Mary L. Schoenheit decided to let her 7-year-old daughter go to public school after all.

Mrs. Schoenheit a former school teacher, had been tutoring Mary at home. The mother contends Mary is an exceptional child. She says public schools turn children into "trained seals."

Mrs. Schoenheit's resistance came to a head Wednesday when Magistrate W. G. Heidbreder fined her $5 and sentenced her to 10 days in jail.

Two hours later Mrs. Schoenheit was back before the magistrate. "I'm whipped," she said. "I'll put her in school."

Heidbreder issued a stay of execution and released the mother.

Nixon Orders Ban On Cadillacs, Claim

AKRON (P)—Adlai E. Stevenson said Thursday that Vice President Nixon has "instructed his staff not to use any more Cadillacs in his parades."

In a political rally here, Stevenson said Nixon is "getting sensitive" over what Stevenson calls the "Cadillac cabinet" of President Eisenhower.

"Those Republicans think of everything!" said the Democratic presidential candidate.

Man, 105, Stays Clear Of Women

BOSTON (P)—Charles W. Thiery, who will be 106 years old on Oct. 26, says his good health could be attributed to his lack of interest in women.

The white whiskered bachelor said women are just as beautiful today as they were in the last century, but he added "I never paid much attention to them. Marriage is not for me."

Ohio Journalism Hall Fame Due To Receive 3 New Names

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A panel of 56 judges has voted the names of three more men into the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame.

Dr. James E. Pollard, director of the sponsoring School of Journalism at Ohio State University, announced the result of recent balloting. The names to be added in a formal ceremony late in the fall are those of:

Louis H. Brush, Salem, co-founder of the Brush-Moore Newspapers.

Hugh S. Fullerton Sr., Hillsboro, noted sports writer.

William O. Littick, Zanesville, late president of the Zanesville Publishing Co.

The new election will bring the number in the Hall of Fame to 48. It is the first election since 1950.

For a newspaperman's name to be eligible, he must have been born in Ohio or have distinguished himself in Ohio journalism and must have been dead at least five years. Two-thirds of the judges of three more men into the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame.

Brush was publisher of the Salem News and the East Liverpool Review before the Brush-Moore Newspaper group was founded in 1927. He was board chairman of the group and died in 1948.

Fullerton's 45-year writing career began in Hillsboro and ranged from Chicago to New York to Columbus. He was among those who helped expose the Black Sox baseball scandal in 1919. He died in 1946.

Littick started as a mailing clerk on the Zanesville Times Recorder and rose to managing editor, business manager and publisher. He was an early president of the Ohio Newspaper Assn. and was active in the old Associated Ohio Dailies. He died in 1941.

Tired Businessman Offered Robot-Written Letter Deal

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

Next time you get a nice, long, chatty letter from your husband while he's away on a business trip, look twice. It may have been written by a robot.

This is the latest bit of automation invented to simplify the life of the tired businessman, who has just as many push-button appliances as the more highly publicized ones operated by his wife. When he wants to write a letter — even a highly personal one — all he has to do is turn things over to a freighting new gadget called the robotypewriter. Within seconds the letter is electrically typed, stamped and in the mail.

All he has to do is sign his name. Wives of men attending the National Business Show in New York this week probably are amazed at the number of cheery letters they are receiving, when usually the most they can hope for is a postcard when pop is on the road.

What they don't know is that it's all due to this highly educated machine, which can turn out apparently bona fide letters of any kind in the bat of an eyelash. The service is being offered free, including stamps, to men attending the business show, who select the sentiments they wish to express from some 30 pre-written paragraphs in any combination desired. A live secretary (blonde) then punches the designated paragraph buttons and the letter is on its way. Here's an example, which took 75 seconds to produce by punching paragraph buttons 3-11-17:

"Hi honey: 'Don't feel bad about not coming along. It's a terrific grind, on the go every minute, 20 hours a day. Oh, I've had to go to some of the night spots because some good customers insist on it, but you know how it is, dear — business, business, business every minute. You just wouldn't have enjoyed it — it's too tiring."

"These New Yorkers are the funniest people. One native I met spends over two hours each day commuting to and from work. He lives in New England, I think. Another one lives in Philadelphia and travels to and from New York city every day. Crazy, I call it. 'I'll let you know later when to expect me. Love to you and your mother, too.'"

Beryllium Firm Facing Lawsuit

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A former technician at Clifton Products Inc., which manufactures beryllium products, has sued the company because of his wife's death.

Ludwig W. Fryer is asking damages of $50,000 on the ground that the company was negligent in failing to provide employees with uniforms and laundry service to prevent them from carrying toxic material into their homes.

He contends his wife contracted a fatal illness while washing and caring for his work clothes, which contained traces of the beryllium products.

Twin Slaying Trial Slated For Dec. 3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The first degree murder trial of Mrs. Blanche E. Jacobs, 32, has been set for Dec. 3 in common pleas court here, Prosecutor Samuel L. Devine said Thursday.

Mrs. Jacobs is charged with the July 2 knife-slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Robinson of near-by Groveport.

Bullet Kills Boy

CHARDON, Ohio (AP)—Carrying a .22 caliber rifle home from a hunting trip, 14-year-old John Smallwood of Middlefield was killed Thursday when the rifle discharged accidentally and the bullet struck him in the throat.

Good posture is a cook's best friend; it helps to prevent fatigue! So don't stoop, slump or bend over those kitchen tasks.

U.S., British Debating Suez

2 Nations Reported To Differ On Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain are reported to have hit a new snag in trying to work out common policies for dealing with Egypt in the Suez Canal dispute. This one concerns the payment of tolls for ships going through the canal.

However, some diplomatic officials say that at the heart of the current disagreement is the basic issue of how tough a line the Western powers should take toward Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The specific problem of what the newly organized Suez Canal Users' Assn. should do about ship tolls is in active negotiation between Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Dulles is described as advocating that any money paid to the users association by ships going through the Suez should then be turned over to Egypt for use of the canal—less, of course, any association expenses for pilot services and the like.

Lloyd is said to have proposed that such tolls be held as blocked funds not to be paid to Egypt until there is a final settlement of the Suez controversy.

FAILURE to resolve these differences is blamed for the lack of action by the U. S. government so far toward having American ship owners pay canal tolls to the association instead of to Egypt, as they are now doing.

Dulles' proposal in effect would carry over the present American practice of paying money to Egypt. But it would enhance the prestige and authority of the users association by making it an intermediary.

Dulles has maneuvered ever since the crisis arose to avoid a showdown with Egypt while Britain and France on various occasions would have preferred to force the issue.

Short Cuts, Huh?

SHAW, England—Police had to drive the conductor of a holiday-special train to the next station so he could take over his duties again. If left behind when it pulled out too quickly,

The first submarine that actually sank another vessel was the Confederate "Hunley" built during the Civil war. It sank the Union frigate "Housatonic" in Charleston harbor.

It took seven days and 17 hours for a copy of Lincoln's first inaugural address to reach California in 1861.

Army Band 'Soldiers Chorus' Familiar To All Music Lovers

Group Draws High Plaudits During Show

Credit For Forming Chorus Given To M-Sgt. Donofrio

Long before the famous band came here, Hollywood Bowl, Carnegie Hall and the largest and greatest theaters of Europe and England echoed with applause for the "Soldiers Chorus" of the U. S. Army Field Band of Washington, D. C.

Credit for the forming and continued perfection of this unique vocal group belongs to M-Sgt. Arthur V. Donofrio of Branford, Conn. The chorus has drawn extraordinary praise at the Jubilee Pumpkin Show.

A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, Sergeant Donofrio was teaching music in Puerto Rico in 1941. At the outbreak of World War II he enlisted and served with the 25th Field Artillery Battalion, remaining overseas until recalled in 1944.

Having attained the rank of Master Sergeant, Donofrio was recalled to the United States to organize a chorus for the First Combat Infantry Band.

FROM A nucleus of five or six singers evolved the present 30-voice "soldiers chorus" which has been heard from Maine to California and in England, Europe, Canada and Mexico. Members of the chorus are actually instrumentalists who double in brass as singers.

Donofrio's group has also appeared on the Paul Whiteman show and were featured in a Warner-Pathe movie which was released nationally.

A result of his outstanding work with the chorus, Donofrio, in 1946, received from General Jacob L. Devers, then Commander of Army Ground Forces, the Commendation Ribbon with Medal Pendant as a tribute to his accomplishment in music.

Lausche Warmly Endorses Adlai Stevenson's Candidacy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Gov. Frank J. Lausche endorsed the candidacy of Democratic presidential choice Adlai Stevenson while accompanying Stevenson on a speaking tour across northern Ohio Thursday.

The five-term Democratic governor, running for the U. S. Senate in the Nov. 6 election, also hailed Stevenson's running mate, Estes Kefauver, as one who "would be a worthy successor to the office of the president of the United States."

Lausche's endorsement of his party's presidential candidate is not, in itself, astounding. However, the governor in the past has been described as a fence-straddler by his critics. He has expressed admiration for President Eisenhower and has hinted that he voted for the late Ohio Sen. Robert A. Taft in the 1952 election.

Eisenhower, of course, is a Republican, as was Taft.

In Toledo, where the governor introduced Stevenson at a courthouse rally, he declared:

"When Nov. 6 comes and I go to the ballot box it will be my privilege and my honor to cast a ballot for him (Stevenson) as president of the United States."

Lausche further described Stevenson as a "fearless man" and one who possesses "a humanity which prompts him to help those in this country who are exploited and need help."

The governor also appeared with Stevenson at Elyria and Akron.

Stevenson interpolated a brief reference to Lausche in his speech at Youngstown, saying "Lausche is a great Ohioan—a man known across Ohio for his integrity and independence."

Meanwhile, the governor's senatorial opponent, Republican incumbent George H. Bender, replied to Lausche's statements in a radio television broadcast Wednesday evening in which Lausche called for reduced federal spending.

The senators said in Cleveland that if Lausche "really believes in cutting the size and cost of our federal government, he had better vote for me along with all the other Republicans he claims he likes."

He added: "It is just too painful for him (Lausche) to remember that it was his party that spawned the ever-growing, sprawling bureaucracy which threatened to dominate and control the lives of every man and woman in America."

Also campaigning Thursday was Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill, who outlined to a Cleveland audience a four-point program for increased highway safety. The Republican gubernatorial candidate recommended:

1. Intensive law enforcement every day of the year and not just during temporary "safety drive" periods.

2. Intensive research on the causes of traffic accidents and a vigorous correction program for chronic traffic violators and accident-prone drivers.

3. A stepped-up highway construction program which will give priority to those projects which would relieve unsafe conditions.

4. A comprehensive driver-training program reaching all high school pupils and emphasizing skill and judgment in critical traffic situations.

In Cleveland, a beaming Mike DiSalle, O'Neill's Democratic opponent, stood three hours in the receiving line of a huge tea and gallantly shook hands with some 6,000 to 8,000 ladies.

In Salem, John Taylor, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, criticized his Republican opponent, Paul M. Herbert, for participating in a recent squabble involving the Ohio Turnpike Commission.

"The lieutenant governor should be a completely impartial president ing officer of the Senate," Taylor said, "and should do nothing to impair his usefulness in that capacity."

Herbert is a former lieutenant governor but does not now hold that post.

"My son is praying for someone to take his dog in and be good to him. He loved him so much. So did we.

"Thank you, whoever you may be, and God bless you."

Mrs. Bonnanno said she wants the youngster, whoever he is, to know that "Spotty" is in good hands.

LET'S EXPLORE OHIO

STATE PARKS

Visitors to the Logan Elm State Memorial Park five miles south of Circleville find it difficult to believe that this was one of Ohio's famous cross roads of history in the days of the Indians and the early pioneers. This general area was known as the Pickaway Plains. On both sides of the Scioto River were Indian villages when Lord Dunmore led his expedition against these towns in August, 1774.

It was at Logan's Elm that the Indian Chief Logan delivered his famous speech in protest of the treatment of his family by the white men in that same year.

Today the Ohio Historical Society maintains this five-acre State Memorial Park at Logan's Elm. Many families use the picnic facilities in this park.
